Write for World Student!

World Student is your magazine and we want it to be filled with your stories, opinions and experiences. More than many other young people of your age, you and your fellow students are the global citizens of the future. We hope this magazine can encourage you to fully appreciate and exploit this unique position.

We hope the magazine can play a small role in helping young adults like you see your future as one filled with courage, generosity, creativity, values and determination. World Student wants to promote in you a commitment beyond exams and qualifications, to personal growth and responsibility through service to others on an international scale.

We are looking for articles written by students on topics such as: stories and advice on transitioning from school to school and country to country; how you view the future job market and future of further and higher education; issues you would like to tackle both locally and globally; your experiences with the different curricula and exams; etc. Anything of relevance to life in an international school.

We also welcome articles written by staff, such as: careers guidance advice; exam and curriculum study tips; the benefits of various extracurricular activities, etc.

Contributors should aim for around 1000 words and try to send a small selection of high-resolution images to accompany your article, if possible.

Articles or ideas should be sent to the publishers via alexsharratt@johncatt.com.
